Glenbard South book drive will benefit Chicago youngsters

What better gift can you give a child than a book? Students at Glenbard South High School are collecting books to be donated to BookWorm Angels, a nonprofit organization that helps establish lending libraries in inner city Chicago public schools.

From Monday, Nov. 27, to Friday, Dec. 8, Glenbard South's library will collect new and gently used "fun" books that are appropriate for children in kindergarten through eighth grade. (No religious books or textbooks, please).

Why not check your bookshelves at home and see if there are some books you would like to share with a youngster? Donations may be dropped off at Glenbard South, 23W200 Butterfield Road in Glen Ellyn.

Students in Key Club and National Honor Society are assisting with this important program.

For further information, please contact assistant librarian Kelly McGorray at (630) 469-6500 Ext. 4292.
